Does AYSO require additional penalties for players who receive cautions (yellow cards) in a series of games?

FIFA Law requires that players receiving a second caution (yellow card) in the same game be sent off (red card). FIFA also requires a minimum additional one game suspension. Many AYSO regions, areas, sections and tournaments institute procedures, established and published in advance, whereby additional disciplinary action may be taken against players receiving a specified number of cautions (yellow cards) in a series of games.
